

USB Flash Disk User's Manual

1. USB flash disk performance

- 1.1. USB 1.0/2.0 compliant hot plug & play;
- 1.2. No external power is required, powered by USB bus directly;
- 1.3. High capacities;
- 1.4. Highly compatibility between different operation systems;
- 1.5. Electronic storage device, no mechanical components, shake protection, electromagnetic wave protect;
- 1.6. Write/delete protection switch;
- 1.7. More than 10 year date retention;
- 1.8. High transferring rate;
- 1.9. Easily portable;

2. System requirement

- 2.1. Computer system requirement IBM PC/AT or compatible desktop or notebook or Mac computer with USB port.

2.2. Operation system requirement

Windows 98 SE
Windows ME
Windows 2000
Windows XP
Mac OS 9.X or above
Linux Kernel 2.4 or above

3. Software installation

- 3.1. Driver installation for Windows 98 SE
 - 3.1.1. Be sure your computer support USB port;
 - 3.1.2. Be sure the USB ports work correctly;
 - 3.1.3. Startup Windows 98 SE, then insert the driver disk into floppy driver;
 - 3.1.4. Plug the USB Flash Disk into the USB port of your computer, the system will detect it and prompt to setup driver, do as the system requires;
 - 3.1.5. After finished the driver installation and restart the system, then you could find a new drive icon named Removable Disk on My Computer;
- 3.2. Driver installation for Windows ME/2000/XP and Mac OS;

- 3.2.1. Be sure your computer support USB port;
- 3.2.2. Be sure the USB ports work correctly;
- 3.2.3. Insert the USB Flash Disk into USB port of the computer.

The system would setup the driver automatically. After that, you will find a new drive icon named Removable Disk or local Disk or local Disk on My Computer, it is just the USB Flash Disk. In general the USB Flash Disk is the last drive of operation system;

4. Notices

- 4.1. You can not plug out the USB Flash Disk until the indicator is blinking slowly;
 - 4.2. The USB Flash Disk is online and ready while indicator blinking slowly. Other wise the USB Flash Disk is in a read/write processing and can't be plugged out from computer while indicator blinking rapidly.
- The indicator light is off while the USB Flash Disk is offline or the computer is in sleep;
- 4.3. You could turn  or  the write protect switch only when the USB Flash Disk is offline;
 - 4.4. Please wait 5~10 seconds between two plugging in/out.